Former FPA directors volunteer to be Future2's ambassadors in the community

Eight prominent financial planning professionals will lead Future2 Foundation's push to raise its profile and to create a pool of funds for grant-making.

The individuals, all former board directors of the Financial Planning Association, are Dominic Alafaci CFP, Kevin Bailey CFP, Paul Brady CFP, Sarah Brennan, Corinna Dieters, Ian Heraud CFP, John Hewison CFP and Mark Spiers CFP.

Future2 Ambassadors have agreed to voluntarily give their time and network of contacts to support Future2's next stage of growth through engagement with the financial planning profession, the wider community and with Future2 grant recipients.

"The goal of Future2 trustees is to raise a pool of at least $15 million that that we can make meaningful grants back to the community, into projects supported by financial planners", said Future2 Chair Steve Helmich.

"We are delighted with the positive and generous response from our new Ambassadors in New South Wales and Victoria and look forward to expanding the network to all states and territories."

Future2 Ambassadors will engage with FPA Chapters, FPA members and Future2 grant recipients; help identify potential corporate supporters; and create awareness of the foundation in the broader community through their personal and business networks.

Future2 is the foundation of the Australian financial planning profession. It exists to support the financially under-privileged and to enable financial planners and associated stakeholders to give back to the community from which they draw their livelihoods. A key factor differentiating Future2 from other foundations is the strong link it seeks to establish with financial planners who assist with project identification, fundraising and promoting the foundation's work in the community.
